As with many of the lists the Recycling Today Media Group produces, our editors rely heavily on figures supplied by recycling companies themselves. We do our best to verify this information, but the system reflects the integrity of those participating.

Additionally, some companies were reluctant to provide information that would help to establish their ranking on our list of the largest electronics recyclers, which has led to their omission from this list. We hope that some of these companies will reconsider their policies for future editions of this list, so that we can provide our readers with the most accurate information possible.
